

Freeze-Frame Feelings

Easy start · Either · Kid can lead · Ages 4–8 · 15 min

Brought to you by Averi — “Count the beat. Then let the beat carry you.”

Show a feeling with your whole body and no words, then see if anybody can read it.

WHAT YOU NEED

- Space to move
- Slips of paper
- A pencil

BEFORE YOU START

Freeze on the spot. No running to get into position.

How to make it

- 1 Write six feelings on six slips of paper and fold them up.
- 2 One person picks a slip without showing anybody.
- 3 They have five seconds to freeze into a shape that shows that feeling. Whole body, no face-pulling and no words.
- 4 Everyone else guesses. The guesser has to say which part of the shape gave it away.
- 5 Swap and repeat until every slip has been used.
- 6 Pick the two hardest ones and try them again as a pair, working together.

TALK ABOUT IT

Which feeling was hardest to show without your face, and what did you use instead?

TRY THIS TOO

Make it a chain: each new freeze has to connect to the one before it, building a whole scene.

DID YOU KNOW? · PEOPLE & COMMUNITY

Bodies communicate before words do. Shoulders, hands, and posture tell people how you feel from right across a room. Actors and dancers use this on purpose, and everybody else does it without noticing.
