

The Story Stage

Easy start · Indoors · Kid can lead · Ages 4–9 · 25 min

Brought to you by Averi — “Count the beat. Then let the beat carry you.”

Build a stage out of a doorway, then tell a story and choreograph the scenes.

WHAT YOU NEED

- A clear patch of floor
- A sheet or blanket for a curtain
- Paper for tickets
- One song you like

BEFORE YOU START

Clear the floor of anything you could trip on before you dance.
Bare feet or grippy socks, not slippery ones.

How to make it

- 1 Mark out your stage with tape or a rug. Everything outside the line is backstage.
- 2 Pick your song and count the beat out loud: one, two, three, four. Keep counting until it feels automatic.
- 3 Invent four moves. Give each one a name so you can remember the order.
- 4 Put the moves in a sequence and repeat it twice through, counting the whole way.
- 5 Decide what the dance is about. Not the words, the feeling. Then adjust one move to show it more clearly.
- 6 Make tickets, hang the curtain, and perform it for one person.

TALK ABOUT IT

You practiced the same four moves several times. What got easier between the first try and the last?

TRY THIS TOO

Teach the sequence to somebody who has never done it. Notice which move is hardest to explain.

DID YOU KNOW? · SOUND & RHYTHM

Dancers count beats to stay together. Counting turns music into a shared map. When everyone counts the same beats, everyone arrives at the same move at the same moment, even without looking at each other.
